HISPANIC VS. LATINX

The terms “Hispanic” and “Latinx” are pan-ethnic and often used interchangeably. Both terms overlap in some ways but actually mean two different things.

Latinx is a person of Latin American origin or descent (used as a gender-neutral or nonbinary alternative to Latino or Latina).

Hispanic refers to those who speak Spanish or those who are descended from Spanish-speaking lineage, especially those of Latin America.

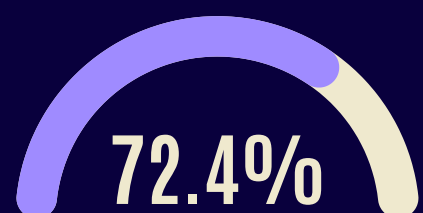

Latino is a person of Latin American origin or decent, especially a man or boy.

Latina is a person of Latin American origin or decent, especially a woman or girl.
